

Louis J. King II is the President and CEO of Summit Academy OIC, a merged organization of Twin Cities OIC (Opportunities Industrialization Center) and Two or More, Inc. Summit Academy is a non-profit, educational and vocational training institute that empowers Twin Cities residents to become self-reliant, employed members of their community. King is dedicated to creating better communities by providing educational opportunities to Academy students through a variety of programs, which emphasize self-sufficiency, responsibility and accountability as well as leadership training.

In 1996, King was elected to the Minneapolis School Board, and completed his four-year term. He is currently on the The Fairview Medical Foundation Board, The St. Thomas Academy Board, and he Chairs the Seed Academy Board of Directors and The Network for Better Futures Board of Directors. Mr. King has participated in two White House Conferences on Children and Families and works as a consultant in the area of non-profit management systems development. He has completed the Harvard certificate course on non-profit management and served as a consultant to many community based organizations and government entities in the Twin Cities. King has held leadership positions in several community organizations such as the Bryant Neighborhood Organization and the Glenwood-Lyndale Community Center, where he served as President of their respective Boards.

Louis is a graduate of Morehouse College with a B.A. in Political Science. Prior to joining Two or More in 1993, King served in the U.S. Army for 10 years, achieving the rank of Major. He is married to Beverly and has three children Aja, Kamaria, and Lauryn. He is also a member of the Minneapolis Club.
